What is Obami?

Obami is a social learning platform. It combines social networking tools with the virtual learning environment and provides school administrators with a comprehensive dashboard to make school community management easy and effective.

Obami supports all levels of interaction between teachers, learners and their parents, within and between both primary and secondary schools.

The platform is already being used by hundreds of schools across Africa, Europe and the United States.

It was voted as one of the world’s top 10 technologies in 2011 by the likes of UNESCO and was recently identified by Forbes as one of the top start-ups in Africa.

What can you do on Obami?

Replicate communities that exist in real school life (e.g. the science class or the rugby team).

Set and administer extensive privacy, security, profanity and cyber-bullying controls.

Communicate with all school members through a variety of channels (Obami messages, SMS, email and instant messaging).

Upload, build, share, access and store content - from newsletters, photos, videos and websites to pdfs, presentations, podcasts, polls and wikis.

Source, create, assign and carry out homework, worksheets, projects, tests and even exams - with self marking and easy exporting of grades.

Stay on top of school events like term dates, sports fixtures and exam timetables.

Effortlessly keep parents posted on their children’s academic performance in real-time.

Interact with teachers and learners from other schools, locally and abroad.

So, why use Obami?

It supports 21st century skills development (communication, collaboration, creativity, critical thinking and knowledge building).

It provides multiple, 2-way communication channels for interacting with your entire school audience and generating valuable feedback.

It’s accessible 24/7 - at school and at home, via the web or mobile.

It saves time, trees and your school’s money.

It’s highly engaging.

It’s easy-to-use.

It’s productive.

It’s secure.

It’s free.
